

HONORS TO THE FIRST ADMIRAL

Flowers Will Be Strawn To-Morrow Over Farragut's Grave.

Admiral Kaznakoff Will Join in the Beautiful Ceremony.

The Farragut Association of Naval Veterans, of the Port of New York, will observe a time-honored and beautiful custom to-morrow, and in it they will be joined by Vice-Admiral Kaznakoff, of the Russian navy, and his staff of forty officers.

THE FARRAGUT MONUMENT.

The naval veterans go to Woodlawn to-morrow to scatter flowers on the grave in which rests the remains of the American sailors' idol, David Glasgow Farragut, First Admiral of the United States Navy in the times when rugged patriotism and intrepid nerve and undoubted courage gave to men like him and Sherman, Grant, Porter and Sheridan the first places in the hearts of their countrymen.

Farragut, whose sublime profanity furnishes the motto for the Association of "old salts" that bears his name—"D— the torpedoes! Go ahead!"—lies beside his wife at the foot of an unassuming shaft in Woodlawn.

It is a simple obelisk, on a plain square base, the whole being twenty feet high. The shaft is of unpolished marble. It is in the form of a ship's mast, broken at the top. On the base is this inscription:

"Erected by his wife and son to the memory of David Glasgow Farragut, First Admiral in the United States Navy. Born, July 5, 1801. Died, Aug. 14, 1870."

compass, emblem of Freemasonry; a sword and other emblems. It is a simple monument to a hero. All about it are the costly and elaborate mausoleums and monuments to citizens of wealth, whose family pride is expressed in these memorials to the departed.

A few years ago the widow of "Brave Old Salt" joined him in the pretty cemetery. The son, Loyal Farragut, lives unassumingly with his wife at 133 East Thirty-sixth street. He is an officer of the Central Railway of New Jersey.

The Farragut Association of Naval Veterans of the Port of New York, organized Nov. 1, 1882, has a membership of 225, with James P. Holland, the Port street coffee man, as Captain.

In accordance with a long-established custom, Naval Post 516, Grand Army of the Republic, Charles Harley, commandant, will join with the Farragut veterans in this memorial.

There are 140 of these veterans, and this year the Naval Cadets, comprising seventy-five boys, the sons of the old tars, in white shirts, blue sailor trousers and puttees, will go along under command of Capt. Norton, and the Monitor Crew, of Brooklyn, consisting of 150 of the survivors from the crew of the old Cheesbrough, will join in the ceremonial.

The members of these three organizations will gather at the Grand Central Station at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon in the full uniform of their respective organizations, officers wearing side arms.

The Russian Admiral will be met at the foot of West Forty-second street as he comes ashore from his flagship by a committee composed of Past Captains F. H. Grove, Lewis Richards and Joseph Hatfield, and Capt. Thomas Pickens, of the old warship Brooklyn, who will escort him and his staff of officers to the depot, where they will embark for Woodlawn.

Loyal Farragut, who was a Lieutenant in the navy in war times; Capt. John Watson, U. S. N., and other distinguished guests will accompany the memorial party.

The services in connection with the ceremony of scattering flowers on the tomb will include a prayer by Chaplain Robert Edwards, of the Association, eulogy by Chaplain Allmon, of the National Association; addresses by R. S. Osborn, Rear-Admiral of the National Association; F. H. Grove, who was a close friend of Farragut, and the Russian Admiral, all of whom will be introduced by Lieut.-Commander C. G. Flynn, Chairman of the Memorial Committee. The Sunday-school children will sing and martial music will be made by the Naval Drum Corps.

Admiral Kaznakoff is exceedingly democratic in his ways, and he made it a condition of his invitation to join in honoring Farragut that there should be no carriage for himself or friends.

The condition was agreed to, but the naval veterans have arranged for enough special street cars on the Forty-second street cross-town line to carry the distinguished guests from the North River to the railway station.

On Memorial Day the Farragut Association turns out with the Naval Post, U. S. N. R., in the compliment of to-morrow.

SERVANT HELD FOR THEFT.
Annie Jones's Trunk Contained Lines Said to Have Been Stolen.

Annie Jones, a colored girl of twenty years, was held for trial in the Jefferson Market Police Court today charged with robbery. She was formerly employed as a servant by Eliza L. Morford, who keeps a boarding-house at 30 West Seventeenth street. After working there about a month she disappeared and the same time a quantity of linen was missed.

The fact was reported to Inspector McLaughlin, and it was learned that Eliza had seen her trunk at Farmville, Va. It was intercepted and the stolen linen was recovered. The girl was arrested last night at West Twenty-second street. She held was for trial.

ATHLETE FORD BRINGS SUIT.

He Wants a Share of His Father's Big Estate.

Disinherited Because of His Attention to Sports.

Malcolm W. Ford, the champion amateur athlete, has brought an action against his brothers and sisters to obtain a share in the estate of his father, one late Gordon L. Ford, who disinherited Malcolm in his will.

When the will was read and it was found that Malcolm had been cut out with a shilling by his father, his brothers and sisters agreed to give him a share in the estate if he would not contest the will. This agreement was drawn up in the form of a contract, and the present suit is a friendly action brought to obtain the fulfillment of the contract and the partition of the property.

The first steps were taken when Malcolm Ford obtained an order from Justice Bartlett, of the Supreme Court, to compel his brothers, Worthington C. and Paul L. Ford, to appear in court on May 27 and give testimony as to the value of the estate left by their father. This is necessary in order that the plaintiff may properly prepare his complaint.

The other defendants in the action are Mrs. Rosalind G. Barr, Mrs. Mabel Mayo Smith, Mrs. Emily E. Worthington C. and Catherine G. Turle. It was stated at the time of Mr. Ford's death that the father had strongly disapproved of the great interest taken by his son in athletics, and not being able to induce Malcolm to give up his sports an estrangement had followed which resulted in Malcolm's being disinherited. The relations between the athlete and the rest of his family have always been pleasant.

Gordon L. Ford, the father of Malcolm W. Ford, died on Nov. 14, 1901. He was a retired lawyer and lived at 97 Mark street, Brooklyn. The value of the estate which he left was estimated at about $2,000,000.

In his will, after some special bequests to his two sons, Paul L. and Worthington C. Ford, he left the bulk of his estate to his widow for her use during her life, and at her death to be divided equally between his two sons and four married daughters.

The name of Malcolm W. Ford was not anywhere mentioned in the will. Mr. Ford had disowned Malcolm and had turned him out of his house some time previous to his death.

One cause of the estrangement is said to have been the rumpus which occurred in athletic circles a few years ago over the standing of Malcolm Ford as an amateur athlete. Charges that he was a professional were pending against him for a long time, and he was suspended for a while, but was afterwards reinstated.

At the time of his suspension and after his reinstatement he was a member of the Manhattan Athletic Club. For several years he held the championship of the United States as an all-round athlete.

Held for Abduction.
Abe Oppenheimer, living at Ninety-third street and Columbus avenue, was held for trial on a charge of abduction by Justice Voorhis in Jefferson Market Court today.

In July last year Oppenheimer induced Kate Ruppel, a pretty girl of fifteen, to leave her mother at 247 Amsterdam avenue and run away with him. He soon deserted her and she returned to her home.

Weather Forecast.
Local forecast for thirty-six hours ending at 8 P. M. Sunday: Fair; slightly warmer, southerly winds.

Momentary Panic Caused by a Cry of Fire in a Paris Theatre.
PARIS, May 20.—During last evening's performance in the Theatre Francaise a noise like the cracking of flames was heard in the gallery. Somebody raised a cry of "Fire" and the audience made a rush for the doors. The performers remained calm and the manager of the theatre soon appeared at the footlights and stated that the noise was caused by the bursting of a water pipe.

This assured the people, most of whom returned to their seats. Nobody was injured in the momentary crush.

THE SUNDAY WORLD

Will offer a paper to-morrow morning that for quantity and quality of reading matter will be beyond all competition. It is impossible to give an abstract of all the admirable features of the great edition, but a few of them are here presented to whet the appetite of the readers.

Remembering how, in addition to these special stories, the entire journalistic field has been searched for all possible additions to the merits of a complete newspaper, it will be understood why everybody will wish to buy

The Sunday World.

SILVER AND THE RECENT FLURRY.

It is proposed to demonstrate that what Wall street men do not know of all sides of a question is beyond guesswork. For the benefit of THE WORLD'S readers the leading financiers have dissected the President's silver policy. After he has digested these views the President will be in possession of a liberal education.

HENRY CLEWS ON PANICS.

Mr. Clews is satisfied that, while the financial system of our Government needs correction, there is no immediate danger of a panic. He reviews the great American panics, scoffs at any idea of regular periodicity and shows that they proceed from well-known causes.

A DAY WITH OLIVER SUMNER TEALL.

Mr. Teall is the enthusiastic and popular philanthropist who had rather be right than be President. A very busy man is Mr. Teall, and the public is anxious to know just how he puts in his time. The public is now in a position to find out.

STORY OF THE SPANISH NATION.

Just at this time Spain is of more interest to Americans than at any time within the century. The people of the New World are a little rusty in Spanish history. They will have the opportunity of brushing up to-morrow.

TALE OF A LITTLE AMOY WIFE.

Showing that virtue, even among Chinamen, is its own reward, and that the young woman who started out on the right path in New York and followed it in China was blessed beyond the common run.

THE DUKE OF ARGYLL ON WEALTH.

The Duke has written a book with great care and Nym Crinkle reviews it with equal care. This insures a combination that is not to be spurned.

TERRORS OF IMMIGRATION.

As seen through the gold-rimmed glasses of John J. Inzalla. Incidentally, the observing statesman touches on the Chinese question and emits a few sparks.

LIFE IN LONDON TOWN.

Cheerful comments by Harry Furness, poking a little fun at John Bull on his native heath. Illustrated in Mr. Furness's most fetching style.

REFLECTIONS BY BILL NYE.

Superinduced by an attempt to checkmate the operations of a robust editor and by the scurvy trick played upon a meek and lowly man by a witty wife. Mr. Nye defends his sex.

POKER STORIES, WISE AND WITTY.

Everybody likes a good poker story. And here are a dozen fine ones collected by a man of wide experience and unquestionable veracity.

BEAUTIES OF THE ORIENT.

Mr. Diodati Thompson has travelled much and often. He has come back to his clubs loaded with treasures and reminders of the Orient. Among these treasures are pictures of the ravishing beauties of the harem. To gaze upon these pictures as Mr. Thompson has, perhaps, gazed upon the originals is a pleasure beyond the ordinary dispensation.

HUNGARY'S PRIME MINISTER.

A talk with a remarkable man. His account of the wonderful progress made in two decades. The absorbing question of Church and State. Will America have the Pope?

ZEB JOHNSON DRUNK AGAIN.

Another proof of what a dog in the family can bring about. If Mr. Johnson's mother had not introduced that pug dog Zeb might have never become a "scaped lunatic."

THE HARVARD NINE.

Will Harvard win the college championship? Look at the boys and judge for yourself. Their pictures set off a sporting page that covers fully every department of athletics.
